General comments

In addition to spelling, grammatical errors were prevalent, particularly with subject-verb agreement and the use of tenses. Candidates are encouraged to pay close attention to these aspects of language to improve their writing quality. Some examples are as follows:

Aspect	Incorrect	Correct
ன – ணா – ந	புல்லிகள் கடிணமாக	புள்ளிகள் கடினமாக
ல – ள – ழ	புரியவிள்ளை	புரியவில்லை
ர – ற	பெற்றிய	பெரிய

மெய் மிகும் இடங்கள்	அதிகம்மாக தீ பெட்டி கை பிடி	அதிகமாக தீப்பெட்டி கைப்பிடி

பொருள் மாற்றத்தைத் தரும் சொற்கள்	நனைத்தால் வடை	நினைத்தால் விடை

Overall, it is evident that while many candidates showcased commendable effort and improvement, particularly in spelling among more proficient writers, there remains a need to focus on accuracy in both spelling and grammar. Continued practice and attention to these areas could lead to even better performance in future assessments.

Comments on specific questions

Section A

Topics (a) and (c) were the most popular choices. Section A 1(a) should include both a sender and receiver's address, which is crucial for the proper format of letter writing.

Spoken Tamil is permitted when Section A involves writing an informal letter. However, only Written Tamil is appropriate for any formal letters.

Spoken Tamil can be used without spelling and grammar mistakes in Section A topic (c), which involves a dialogue.

Section B

In Section B, topics (a) and (b) were most frequently selected. Candidates were generally more confident in expressing their ideas, but they still need to focus on organising their thoughts coherently. The use of paragraphs and connectors to link ideas was a common area of improvement. The clarity and flow of the argument can enhance overall comprehension and engagement for the reader.

Key messages

To do well in this examination paper, candidates are strongly encouraged to:

- Ensure that all questions in both Section A and Section B are fully addressed.
- Demonstrate adequate control over vocabulary, syntax, grammar, punctuation, and spelling.
- Possess a diverse and apt vocabulary, allowing for precise expression of ideas and concepts in the target language.
- Effectively organise and present facts, ideas, and opinions. Clarity and coherence in argumentation are crucial for proper communication.

General comments

The overall performance of candidates on this paper is commendable. Stronger candidates displayed exceptional proficiency, particularly in the translation section, demonstrating their ability to convey meanings adeptly. However, weaker candidates encountered difficulties, particularly in accurately constructing sentences, selecting appropriate vocabulary, and minimising grammatical errors during translations.

A critical point of consideration for candidates is the avoidance of colloquial Tamil expressions in the English-Tamil translation segment. While it is essential to comprehend the source English text accurately, employing formal language is equally important in the examination.

Moreover, common spelling errors were observed, particularly relating to the misuse of specific letters, which were frequently written incorrectly.

Comments on specific questions

Section A

In the Tamil into English Translation

1. Weaker candidates have replaced the phrase ‘railway station’ with ‘taxi station’, ‘gas station’ etc.
2. It was expected that except for the words Butter and Jam, no other English words should be transliterated into Tamil.
3. In Sri Lankan Tamil, ‘Girl friend’ is referred to as ‘நண்பி’ too. Thus, if any candidate had used this term in their translation, is was accepted as correct.
